Historic Colonia and Woodbridge Township

The township of Woodbridge is named after Reverend John W. Woodbridge (1613–1691) of Newbury, Massachusetts. The Township of Woodbridge is the oldest original township in the state of New Jersey. According to Joshua Coffin, the early settlers included "Captain John Pike, the ancestor of General Zebulon Montgomery Pike, who was killed at the battle of Queenstown in 1812, Thomas Bloomfield, the ancestor of Joseph Bloomfield, some years governor of New Jersey, John Bishop, senior and junior, Jonathan Haynes, Henry Jaques, George March, Stephen Kent, Abraham Toppan, junior, Elisha Ilsley, Hugh March, John Bloomfield, Samuel Moore, Nathaniel Webster, John Ilsley, and others." ⁶¹ It was settled in the early autumn of 1664 and was granted a charter on June 1, 1669 by King Charles II of England, and reincorporated on October 31, 1693. Woodbridge Township was incorporated by an Act of the New Jersey Legislature on February 21, 1798. Portions of the township were taken to form Rahway (April 19, 1858), Raritan Township (March 17, 1870, now Edison Township) and Roosevelt (April 11, 1906, now Carteret).

Woodbridge, specifically Fords, Was The Home To The Jersey Blues, A Militia Group That Was Intent On Protecting Colonial New Jersey. The Jersey Blues Were Instrumental To Help The withdrawal Of British Troops During The Revolutionary War. Besides Making An Impact On Our Independence, The Jersey Blues Provided Other Services To Woodbridge Township Citizens. The Blues Were A Heroic Force That Were Often Praised By General George Washington And Other Continental Army Officers. The Blues Were One Of The Only Militias That Went Into Service When Others Refused. The Blues Fought In The Civil War And Many Other Conflicts. After The Spanish - American War, the Jersey Blues Started 3 Fire Companies in Woodbridge, Perth Amboy, And Piscataway. What may be said to be the first anti-slavery meeting ever held in the United States was held in Woodbridge on the 4th of July, 1783, seven years after the Declaration of Independence and six years before George Washington was inaugurated as President of the United States. This meeting was held on the farm of Moses Bloomfield, a surgeon in the Continental Army, located north of Freeman

Street where Barron Avenue runs through Prospect. In 1789 The Man Who Would Become The First President Of The United States Of America General George Washington, While Passing

Thru New Jersey On His Way To New York For His Presidential Inauguration Stayed At The Cross Keys Tavern With New Jersey Governor Livingston. The Cross Keys Tavern Was Located On Main Street In Woodbridge's Downtown Area, But Was Later Moved Near Amboy Avenue, Where It Now Stands Behind The 7

- Eleven. Woodbridge was location for the First Ever Safety - Engineered Highway System. In 1929, the connection to Route 1 and Route 35 was made into a "Cloverleaf" Connection. The 2 Highways Are Situated Together Where They Have On Ramps And Off Ramps To Connect To Northbound And Southbound Of Both Highways.
